1. Treatment and Management of HIV Infection in the United States is an inaugural domestic conference bringing together 2,000 - 3,000 frontline clinicians and health care providers for persons with or at risk for HIV infection. This conference is the only general-access state-of-the-science HIV treatment conference in the US which is targeted to primary care providers of HIV care for adults, adolescents, children and pregnant women. The conference will deliver to frontline providers high quality education on new developments and research findings in HIV therapeutics and management of HIV infection as a chronic disease that can be rapidly translated into the clinic.
